SHORT ESSAY ON DIWALI (100 WORDS)

Diwali, or Deepavali, is a famous festival of lights celebrated across India. It marks the victory of Lord Rama over Ravana and the return of Rama to Ayodhya after 14 years of exile. People clean their homes, light diyas, and decorate with rangoli. Families worship Goddess Lakshmi and Lord Ganesha for wealth and good fortune. On this day, delicious sweets are made, and people exchange gifts with friends and relatives. Children enjoy bursting crackers, though many now celebrate in an eco-friendly way. Diwali is a festival of joy, unity, and happiness that spreads light everywhere.

ESSAY ON DIWALI IN 200 WORDS

Diwali is one of the most important festivals in India. It is also known as Deepavali, which means a row of lights. This festival usually falls in October or November and is celebrated with great joy. According to Hindu mythology, Diwali marks the return of Lord Rama to Ayodhya after defeating Ravana. People welcomed him by lighting diyas and decorating their houses, and this tradition continues even today.

On Diwali, people clean and decorate their homes with candles, lamps, and colorful rangoli. They wear new clothes, worship Goddess Lakshmi, and prepare sweets to share with relatives and friends. The night sky glows with fireworks and sparklers. Children enjoy the celebrations, but people are now encouraged to celebrate in an eco-friendly way.

Diwali is not just a festival of lights; it is also a festival of values. It teaches us that good always wins over evil and truth always defeats falsehood. Diwali spreads happiness, prosperity, and positivity, making it one of the most loved festivals in India.

ESSAY ON DIWALI IN 300 WORDS

Diwali, also called Deepavali, is the festival of lights and one of the most celebrated occasions in India. It is a five-day festival that brings happiness, prosperity, and unity among people. The word “Deepavali” means rows of lamps, and lighting diyas has been a tradition for centuries.

The festival has great cultural and mythological significance. According to the Ramayana, Diwali celebrates the return of Lord Rama, Sita, and Lakshmana to Ayodhya after 14 years of exile. To welcome them, the people of Ayodhya lit thousands of diyas. This tradition continues as families light oil lamps and decorate their homes with rangoli and flowers.

On this day, Goddess Lakshmi and Lord Ganesha are worshipped for wealth and wisdom. Families prepare sweets, exchange gifts, and spend time with loved ones.

Children enjoy bursting crackers, though today many prefer eco-friendly celebrations to avoid pollution.

Diwali is more than just lights and fireworks.

It carries a deep message: goodness always triumphs over evil, and light always overcomes darkness. It strengthens family bonds, promotes togetherness, and spreads joy. Truly, Diwali is a festival that brightens lives with happiness and positivity.
